

SUPPORTING YOUR CHILD DURING DISTANCE LEARNING

Dear Parents,

As part of the Knowledge and Human Development Authority (KHDA)'s ongoing efforts to support students and their families, and to further strengthen the partnership between schools and parents, KHDA has developed a parent guide titled “Supporting Your Child During Distance Learning.”

This guide is designed to provide parents with clear and practical advice to help support children during periods of distance learning. It focuses on:

- Ensuring continuity of learning
- Supporting students' wellbeing
- Strengthening effective communication between home and school

At the same time, it acknowledges the diverse needs and circumstances of families.

We kindly request you to review the attached guide and make use of the recommendations to better support your child's learning at home.

Please note that this guide is not intended to place additional expectations on parents. Rather, it aims to offer helpful guidance that builds confidence and clarity, contributing to a more stable and effective learning experience for students.

We would also like to reiterate that the school remains fully responsible for planning and delivering the curriculum, monitoring student progress, and providing the necessary academic and pastoral support.

You may also refer to the KHDA guideline through the link for your convenience or please find the attached copy of the KHDA guideline in case you are unable to access the link.

We thank you for your continued cooperation and support.

Warm regards,
