Dear parents,

This year School Health Section is planning for a training program for the students to become health leaders and advocates in Nutrition field, therefore, if you are interested to participate in this program and elevate your nutritional skills and knowledge kindly see the program details in the attachment and register in the provided link.

Student Health Leaders
The training program is designed to empower students to become health leaders and advocates. By equipping them with essential knowledge and skills in nutrition, health, and sustainability, the program aims to nurture their ability to make informed decisions, influence others positively, and create meaningful change within their schools and communities.

During this program, students will be engaged in a variety of workshops, sessions, and activities that are specifically designed to foster a supportive environment conducive to their personal growth and development. The project seeks to empower students to take charge of their own well-being and actively promote health within their communities.

Learning Objectives
  • Equip student health leaders with knowledge about nutrition, health, and sustainable food choices.
  • Empower student health leaders to raise awareness among their peers about the importance of healthy eating and sustainable practices.
